Tips for Choosing the Right Life Jacket

- All life jackets must be U.S. Coast Guard-approved.
- Look for the U.S. Coast Guard statement of approval and approval number on the label of the life jacket.
- There are five types of life jackets designated by the U.S. Coast Guard, but only Types I-III have been approved for use by children.
- Type I life jackets are designed to roll the wearer face up in the water. This is important for young children and weak swimmers.
- Check the manufacturer's label to make sure the life jacket is a proper fit for the child's size and weight.

Large coolers, meals from home, and food delivery are prohibited in the pool area. Small lunch coolers, small pre-packaged snacks, water and non-alcoholic drinks are welcome.
